House Group Hears Plans To Permit Credit Buying In Military Exchanges

Should military families be permitted to buy on credit in Service exchanges?

This question is being explored by the Philbin House Armed Services Subcommittee, which opened hearings on the subject on 10 July.

Maj. Gen. Harlan C. Parks, USAF, Chief of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service, told the subcommittee that the Armed Forces should at least be permitted to carry out such a program on a test basis to determine whether it is desirable and feasible.

Representatives of top retail groups appeared in opposition to the plan. They

Comptroller General Opposes Pay Raises For Retired; "Government Not Obligated"

The Comptroller General of the United States has announced his opposition to pay raises for retired members of the Armed Forces.

Commenting on the Symington proposal to enact the Cordiner Committee recommendations on military pay, Comptroller General Joseph Campbell says, "There is no apparent reason for making the proposed rates of pay applicable to personnel already retired."

His views were requested by the Senate Armed Services Committee in connection with hearings which are expected to be initiated by a special subcommittee headed by Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss.).

Mr. Campbell states, "While adjustments in the rates of active duty pay have been made applicable to the retired pay of members previously retired, particularly where such adjustments were predicated on a general increase in

Journal Story Of Retired Pay Injustice Gets Action; Navy May Reverse Decision

The wheels of justice do not always grind slowly.

On 27 April, THE JOURNAL published an exclusive story about the Navy dropping a 48-year-old commander from the retired rolls after his conviction by a civilian court on a manslaughter charge.

Protesting the action editorially, THE JOURNAL declared that military retired pay is "earned pay" which the Government has no right to take away in such cases.

In the eleven weeks which have since transpired, the case has received widespread publicity and interest, and it now appears that action may be shaping up to restore the retired pay of the officer, Cdr. R. B. Rueger, USN-Ret., and to prevent the loss of retired pay in any future cases of this type.

Here are some of the events which have taken place since THE JOURNAL first disclosed the Navy's action and protested its injustice:

- The House Armed Services Committee questioned the Navy's decision, pointing out that "it has been the consistent position of the military departments, which position has been endorsed by the Congress, that retired pay in the military services is earned retirement and not a gratuity."

- The story was printed in a feature article in the Washington Sunday Star which quoted THE JOURNAL.

- Representative Leon Gavin (R-Pa.) inserted the Star and JOURNAL articles in the Congressional Record, noting that he was "in complete agreement" with the position taken by THE JOURNAL.

- The Washington Daily News related the story for its readers.

- VAdm. James L. Holloway, USN, Deputy CNO for Personnel, advised the House Armed Services Committee that in his "purely personal" view, military families should be assured that retired pay cannot be "cut off at any time due to circumstances which may often be entirely outside the knowledge and beyond the control of the retired person's wife and children." He suggested possible Con-

"Hustler" Points Way To Even Higher Performances, L/G Irvine Says as "World's Fastest Bomber" Is Shown

FT. WORTH, TEX.

THE Air Force is shooting "in the immediate future" for Mach-three speeds in extended flight at 75,000 feet and above.

It is aiming "within the next few years" for Mach-10 speeds in manned vehicles and 15,000-plus miles per hour for missiles.

This is the bold report made here 9 July by Lt. Gen. C. S. Irvine, Deputy Chief of Staff for Materiel, in connection with the first public demonstration of the Convair B-58 Hustler.

Hailing the new plane with its Delta wing design and pinched waist as "the fastest bomber in the world," General Irvine called for a vigorous research and development program that would result in manned aircraft able to exceed 25 miles in altitude.

General Irvine, who headed the special

Lt. Gen. Irvine

Air Force Board that evaluated new engineering approaches to the Hustler, said that "Convair and its supporting subcontractors are to be congratulated for pointing the way toward achieving these characteristics."

The Air Force Materiel Chief said "the Hustler might be considered as a transitional development bridging the knowledge gap between what we previously thought were limitations and what we know now are expected possibilities."

The supersonic craft reverses the trend toward larger and larger bombers, according to Frank W. Davis, Chief Engineer at Convair, who spoke at the unveiling.

The plane's Delta wing, which spans about 55 feet, is curved downward at the leading edges to give the "Hustler" increased range without sacrificing its supersonic speed.

The fuselage is approximately 95 feet long and its sharply-swept tail-fin stands nearly 31 feet from the ground when the plane is resting on the tricycle landing gear.

The struts of the two main landing gear—each carries eight wheels—are exceptionally long to provide for clearance

MAJ. GEN. HENRY K. MOONEY, USAF, left, is congratulated by Maj. Gen. A. W. Kissner, USAF, upon assuming command of the Sixteenth Air Force, a major component of the U. S. Air Forces Strategic Air Command, in Madrid, Spain. The Sixteenth Air Force is charged with the operational responsibility of the air bases nearing completion in Spain. General Kissner has been serving as Chief, Joint U. S. Military Group, and as Commander of the Sixteenth Air Force since its activation on 15 July 1956. (See story on Page 8.)

15,000 Firms Support B-58 Weapon System

FT. WORTH, TEX.

AUGUST C. Esenwein, Convair vice-president and manager of the Fort Worth plant of the General Dynamics Corp., estimates that more than 1,200 vendors of raw materials, off-the-shelf equipment and standard and non-standard items, participated in pushing the B-58 "Hustler" program to completion.

He calculated that there are more than 15,000 firms in all 48 States supporting the B-58 weapon system with components or services.

The 16 major suppliers, and of the pod and the tail and outboard engines during takeoff.

HAVING A TRUE DELTA CONFIGURATION, the "Hustler" does not have tail surfaces. Elevons in the trailing edge of the wing act both as ailerons and elevators.

Mr. Davis said that increases in economy and effectiveness were made possible by "advances in nuclear weapon technology." Since "bigger bangs from smaller bombs opened the door to smaller, less expensive, and more effective bombing systems," comparable advances were made in the airframe, engines and equipment of the new bomber.

The plane's aerodynamic efficiency is increased by "the delta platform of the wing, the camber or curve of the wing leading edge, the thinning down or coke bottling of the fuselage over the wing, the sharpness and thinness of the nose and all of the appendages and the smoothness of skin," Mr. Davis explained.

"THE DELTA'S HIGH SPEED CHARM," he said, "comes because, with its high taper, it can be made thin and strong, and still contain sufficient internal volume to be useful as a fuel tank. The sweep-back of its leading edge also helps to reduce high speed drag. The length of the delta permits deletion of the horizontal tail which reduces drag and weight and avoids some difficult problems due to the effect of the wing's downwash on the tail. Its low speed charm arises from the fact that the development of the stall is so gentle and symmetrical that from the pilot's standpoint it never really stalls in the normally accepted sense of the word."

Mr. Davis attributed the structural efficiency of the "Hustler" to the extensive use of aluminum and stainless steel honeycomb material. In addition to being light in weight and not subject to buckling from aerodynamic heating, the plane's construction materials provide insulation which prevents excessive fuel boil-off during long supersonic missions. He told his audience that special bonding and brazing techniques had to be developed to make these advances possible.

AS TYPICAL OF THE ADVANCES in equipment, Mr. Davis pointed to the bombing and navigations system developed specifically for the B-58 by the Sperry Gyroscope Co. which "provides an increase in accuracy of ten-fold over its predecessors while requiring only two-thirds the weight and volume."

At the same time, Convair's Chief Engineer noted that the large pod slung under the bomber "allows the plane to return home clean without the waste volume contained in an empty bomb bay and without the waste weight and volume contained in an empty fuel tank."

The "Hustler" is powered by four General Electric J-79 turbojet engines mounted in separate nacelles beneath the wing. The engines are fitted with afterburners and variable air inlets.

The B-58 carries a three-man crew.

Navy And Marines Tell Plan To Force Retirement Of 1700 Senior Officers

Almost 1700 senior Navy and Marine Corps officers will be retired involuntarily during the next five years if Congress approves "hump" legislation now before the Kilday House Armed Services subcommittee. Hundreds of others will follow.

Spokesmen for the two Services told the subcommittee that thousands of Navy captains and commanders and Marine Corps colonels and lieutenant colonels must be retired early to relieve promotion stagnation brought about by the large number of officers commissioned during WWII.

Only those officers who have been twice passed-over for promotion will be involuntarily retired.

As compensation, they will receive adjusted retirement pay ranging as high as $56.16 per month for colonels and captains with 24 years' service.

Normally, the retirement pay of a commander with 26 years' service who is involuntarily retired is $436.02 per month. Under the new plan, if a commander is involuntarily retired with only 20 years' service after being twice passed-over, he will receive monthly retirement pay of $349.83. This is $45.63 more per month than he normally would receive after 20 years' service if he voluntarily retired.

Here are the adjusted retirement pay rates for those officers involuntarily released under the new proposal:

Commanders and lieutenant colonels with 20 years total commissioned service, $349.83; 21 years' service, $357.43; 22 years, $365.03; 23 years, $372.63; 24 years, $380.23; 25 years, $387.83.

Captains and colonels with 24 years' total commissioned service will receive $505.44 per month; with 25 years, $514.80; 26 years, $524.16; 27 years, $533.52; 28 years, $542.88; and 29 years, $552.24.

CAPTAINS

Heaviest forced attrition among the Navy's unrestricted Line captains during the first five years after the plan goes into operation will fall on the 1934 group, which will lose about 73 officers to involuntary retirement.

If the legislation is approved to take effect at the beginning of this fiscal year, the Navy will involuntarily retire about 135 unrestricted Line captains on 1 July 1959, including 23 from the 1929 year group, 53 from the 1930 year group and 59 from the 1931 year group.

On 1 July 1960, there will be about 180 forced retirements among twice-passed over captains of the unrestricted Line, including 58 from the 1932 year group, 49 from the 1933 year group and 73 from the 1934 year group.

The following year, 1 July 1961, 99 unrestricted Line captains will be retired, including 69 from the 1935 year group and 30 from the 1936 year group.

On 1 July 1962, 55 will be retired, all from the 1937 year group.

On 1 July 1963, the number climbs to 110, all from the 1938 group.

On 1 July 1964, 87 from the 1939 year group.

On 1 July 1965, 75 from the 1940 year group.

On 1 July 1966, 76 from the 1941 year group.

CHARLES C. FINUCANE (left), Under Secretary of the Army, is welcomed on his arrival to Ft. Monroe recently by General W. G. Wyman, Commanding General, U. S. Continental Army Command. Mr. Finucane, after reviewing an honor guard of Ft. Monroe troops, went into a series of briefings.

Forced retirements among Restricted Line and Staff Corps captains will be assessed at the beginning of the fiscal years as follows: 27 in 1959; 39 in 1960; 28 in 1961 and 30 in 1962.

COMMANDERS

Heaviest forced attrition among the Navy's unrestricted Line commanders who have been twice passed over will hit the 1939 year group.

On 1 July 1959, about 162 unrestricted Line commanders will be involuntarily retired, including about seven from the 1933 year group, 21 from the '34 group; 21 from the '35 group; 19 from the '36 group; 28 from the '37 group and 66 from the '38 group.

On 1 July 1960, about 149 unrestricted Line commanders will be involuntarily retired, all from the 1939 year group.

On 1 July 1961, 141 from the 1940 year group.

On 1 July 1962, 140 from the 1941 year group.

On 1 July 1963—sixth year of operation of the law—the number will climb to 291, all from the 1942 year group.

In addition, the Navy will involuntarily retire about 174 Restricted Line and Staff Corps commanders during the first five years, including 63 at the beginning of fiscal '59; 41 at the beginning of fiscal '60; 35 in FY 61 and 35 in FY 62.

MARINE CORPS

The Marines will involuntarily retire about 304 colonels and lieutenant colonels during the first five years after the law takes effect.

None will be retired in fiscal '58. In fiscal '59, involuntary retirements will total about 82 colonels and 21 lieutenant colonels; in fiscal '60, about 16 colonels and 21 lieutenant colonels; in fiscal '61, about 13 colonels and 40 lieutenant colonels; in fiscal '62, about 62 colonels and 49 lieutenant colonels.

Officials explained that the force-outs depend on many factors and would have to be altered if the size of the Navy is changed or if the officer structure, by categories, is changed.

If the legislation should be made effective on 1 July 1958 instead of 1 July 1957, as proposed, the number of involuntary retirements would be delayed one year all along the line.

Navy officials said the early retirements would be brought to a halt in 1966 for commanders and in 1970 for captains.

Although the plan will add about $2 million to the retirement payroll during the first five years, the subcommittee counsel, Lt. Col. John R. Blandford, USMCR, said he expects the legislation "will save money in the long run."

If the officers involved were permitted to stay on active duty until they complete 26 years' service in the case of commanders and lieutenant colonels, and 30 years' service in the case of captains and colonels, as is now provided by law, their retired pay would be considerably increased.

The hearings were continuing as THE JOURNAL went to press and additional developments will be published in future issues.

Single Project Office Follows Through On B-58 From Inception To Delivery

FORT WORTH, TEX.

The Air Force's weapon system manager concept, used for the B-58 Hustler bomber, is duplicated in a new concept of Air Force project officer assignments.

Col. Joseph W. Howell, USAF, told newsmen here 10 July how a B-58 project office he established at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, in December 1952 is monitoring the bomber from its inception to delivery to using commands, following through in company testing and tests at Edwards AFB Calif., and Eglin AFB Fla.

This would indicate that Colonel Howell will remain the Air Force's "Single Manager" with the B-58 project for many months to come.

He described the Hustler as having the potential of being one of the finest and greatest bombers, thus demonstrating the effectiveness of the weapon system management concept as used for the Hustler, where convair was the single prime contractor.

On hand here for the first public showing of the supersonic bomber also was Maj. Fitzhugh L. Fulton, Jr., of Edwards AFB, test center who has been flying the B-58 since January.

Another Air Force Officer checked out on the B-58 is famed test pilot, Maj. Gen. Al Boyd.

Chief convair test pilot B. A. Erickson, fresh from a press demonstration flight in the Hustler, said Air Force Bomber Pilots will have little difficulty making the transition to the B-58. He described it as "very orthodox."

Following a test construction program of about 30 Hustlers, which carries through fiscal '58, the Air Force must make a decision for fiscal '59 budget as to plans for quantity production of the new weapon. The B-58, in quantity production, is expected to cost about $5 million each.

(Next week's issue of the Journal will carry additional details on the new bomber following a staff visit to the public demonstration this week.)

Army Activates First Redstone Missile Group

The 40th Field Artillery Missile Group, comprised of the 217th FA Battalion (Redstone), 630th Ordnance Co., and 580th Engineer Co., will be assigned to the Third Army as part of the Strategic Army Force.

The new missile group will be approximately 600 strong.

House Group Hears Plans To Permit Credit Buying In Military Exchanges

said it would offer unfair competition because the Services would not require interest payments or carrying charges which are essential to the operation of credit systems by private retailers.

The decision to test the credit plan on a trial basis was made by the Defense Department following recommendations by former SAC Commander General Curtis LeMay, USAF, and General Edwin Rawlings, Commander, Air Materiel Command. It was deferred, however, at the request of Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee to give the Philbin group "an opportunity to consider the matter and report to the full committee."

In asking that charge sales be authorized for exchanges within his command, General LeMay noted that SAC members frequently dispatched on temporary duty must take large sums of money with them to defray their expenses. This depletes the family budget, he said, and "creates a financial hardship on dependent members." The former SAC commander said "Base exchange charge sales would provide added security for the dependents of these airmen." He said such privileges would be in line with SAC policies "of augmenting career incentives for the purpose of retaining military personnel in the Service."

General Rawlings, in submitting a similar request to the Pentagon, remarked that "Our present economic system is in a large measure based on the use of credit." He said, "The refusal by the Exchange Service to permit credit sales undoubtedly gives many of our people a feeling of second class citizenship."

Acting on the two recommendations, the Pentagon decided to test such a plan at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, and March AFB, Calif. The tests were scheduled to begin on 1 July and to last for one year. They have been deferred pending the outcome of the hearings.

Retail groups who oppose the plan suggested this week that if exchange privileges are to be considered a fringe benefit it might be better to provide the benefit in a more direct fashion such as a pay raise. Several groups supported enactment of the Cordiner Committee recommendations to raise military pay.

gressional remedies which would strip offenders of their military rank but permit them to retain their retired pay.

• THE JOURNAL, the Star and the News continued to report developments in the case.

• The Senate Constitutional Rights Committee announced that it planned to look into the matter.

• The House Post Office and Civil Service Committee revealed that it expects to initiate hearings to repeal laws which permit such action to be taken against retired military personnel and other retired Federal workers, except in cases involving espionage, treason or sedition.

• The Navy's action was protested in letters to THE JOURNAL, various Congressional committees, individual congressmen and the warden of the Virginia State Penitentiary where Commander Rueger is serving his sentence.

• A Virginia State congressman announced that he would seek a pardon for Commander Rueger.

• The Rueger family received numerous offers of financial and legal assistance.

• Representative Joel T. Broyhill (R-Va.) protested the Navy's "police state" tactics and requested Secretary of the Navy Thomas S. Gates to reserve the ruling.

• Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) referred the case to a House Armed Services Subcommittee headed by Representative Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex.) and directed a full investigation. Congressman Vinson said he "cannot help but question the fairness of any decision which drops a retired officer from the rolls and deprives not only him but his dependents of any further retirement benefits."

• The Vinson decision was reported in the Washington Post, the Star, the News, THE JOURNAL and by the United Press.

• Congressman Kilday said his subcommittee will launch its investigation of the matter as soon as current hearings on Navy "hump" legislation are concluded.

Meanwhile, the Navy is re-studying the case.

Army Orders Cut-Back Of Formal Ceremonies

Secretary of the Army has told his commanders to cut back on the number of parades, guard mounts, motorcades, and other ceremonies involving large numbers of men and equipment.

These honors are traditionally rendered when high ranking officials visit Army installations.

The Secretary issued the order, he said: "In the interest of economy and efficiency."

The order states that Army officials who are entitled to ceremonial honors are to notify installation commanders of impending visits. At the same time, they are to inform the commander to dispense with ceremonies "unless for compelling reasons they are desirable."

"All visitors," said the Secretary, "are encouraged to decline routine honors unless the ceremony serves a useful purpose."

Commanders who receive requests to omit ceremonies will comply with the visitor's desire. If a visiting official fails to ask for omission of the formal ceremony, the local commander will accord the honors.

"In general," the order states, "full honors will be reserved for statutory appointees and general or flag officers of the United States military Establishment, for foreign dignitaries, and for occasions when ceremonies promote international good will."

Secretary Brucker said the "other military departments may be expected to conform to this practice."

B/G Tschirgi Leads Nuclear Maneuver

Brig. Gen. Harvey C. Tschirgi, USMC, 1st Marine Division Assistant Commander, led Leathernecks who participated in the recently concluded atomic maneuver at the Yucca Flats, Nev., Proving Ground.

Following the blast, Marine helicopters entered the devastated area carrying assault troops engaged in a "vertical envelopment."

The 2d Battalion of the Fifth Marine Regiment formed the nucleus of participating troops. They were supported by fast jets of Marine Attack Squadron 223, operating out of Marine Corps Air Station El Toro, Calif., a half hour's flight time away.

Army Aviators Get AF Commendation

Army helicopter pilots, crew members and others who aided survivors of a crashed Air Force plane near Seoul, Korea, in February have been commended by Maj. Gen. R. L. Waldron, USAF, Commander of the 315th Air Division, in a letter to Brig. Gen. Carl I. Hutton, USA, commanding general of the Army Aviation Center, Ft. Rucker, Ala.

The letter of commendation, endorsed by Lt. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, USAF, Far East AF Commander, and General I. D. White, USA, Commanding General of Eighth Army (Rear), cites the "exceptional service" and "selfless and heroic actions" of the men involved.

Recommended for "special recognition and high honor" were personnel attached to the following units: Korea Military Advisory Group; K-16 Helicopter Ambulance Detachment; 8th Army Aviation Detachment; A-9 Unit of 24th Infantry Div.; 3d Light Aviation Section of 1st Corps; 2d Engineer Group Air Section; 13th Transportation Co.

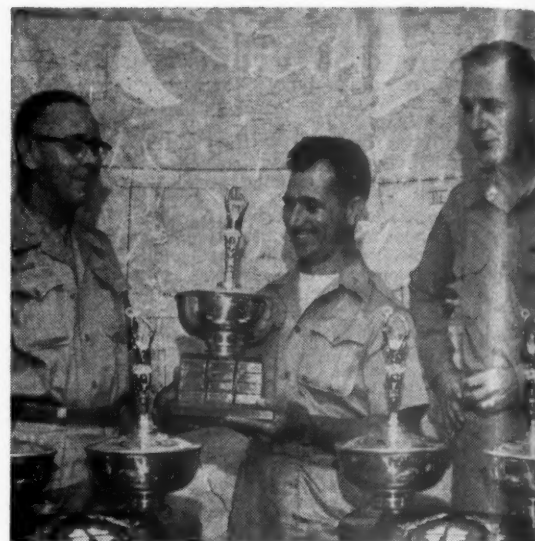

Special mention in the citation was given to: Col. John W. Maxwell, QM, AFCE/8th Army; Col. K. W. Dalton, Army Operating Group; Maj. Kilcauley, TC, U. S. Army Port, Inchon; Capt. John P. Denham, 5th QM Det., Petroleum Laboratory; Capt. William J. Roof, 540 QM Co.; CWO Mielnik, Harbor Master, Inchon.

Missile Policy Hit By 82d Div. Assn.

The annual convention of members of the 82d Airborne Division Association meeting in Cincinnati has urged that the Department of Defense change its regulations that limit the Army's guided missiles to a range of 200 miles.

The resolution urged that "Limitations imposed on the Army by the Department of Defense regarding Army missiles, limiting the range to 200 miles, be re-evaluated to be more in line with the rapidly changing concepts of future warfare."

Aerial Indians

Cessna Aircraft Company's YH-41 four-place helicopter now in production for the Army has been named the "Seneca." The naming follows the Army's new policy of tagging its fixed wing and rotary aircraft with Indian names in addition to numerical designation.

Other Indian designations now in effect are:

H-13 (Bell) Sioux
H-19 (Sikorsky) Chickasaw
H-21 (Piasecki) Shawnee
H-23 (Hiller) Raven
H-34 (Sikorsky) Choctaw
H-37 (Sikorsky) Mojave
H-40 (Bell) Iroquois
DHC-4 (de Havilland) Caribou
HBOA (Army-Marine high performance twin-engine observation airplane) Mohawk

While the twin Buch L-23 has been dubbed the "Seminole," other fixed wing aircraft retain their old names: Cessna L-19 "Bird Dog," de Havilland L-20 "Beaver," and de Havilland U-1 "Otter."

The Hiller Flying Platform has been designated the "Pawnee."

Objective of the new policy is to encourage the uniform use of names in lieu of numbers.

Seventh Army Stages Anniversary Fete

Combining the national birthday of the United States with its own 14th birthday, the Seventh Army staged a joint celebration 4 July at Patch Barracks, Vaihingen, Germany.

The official anniversary of the Pyramid

Patch was actually 10 July, dating from that day in 1943 when, just created, it debarked from transports in the Mediterranean and swept over the rugged Sicilian terrain.

Lt. Gen. Bruce C. Clarke, Seventh Army Commander, was host at the ceremonies to which some 150 German and American leaders and their wives were invited.

Partners and Pioneers in Progress

On this page are some of the Bell Telephone Laboratories scientists and engineers who have been honored recently for outstanding achievement in the sciences that bear on telephony.

We are proud of this fine recognition of their work and the contributions of the many other engineers and scientists who are helping to make telephone dreams come true.

For always there have been dreams and high hopes in the telephone business. Growth begets growth. Research reveals new vistas. The words of thirty years ago are even more true today. "The future of the telephone holds forth the promise of a service growing always greater and better and of a progress the end of which no one can foresee."

A considerable part of that prophecy has been fulfilled. But great as the progress has been, there is still greater progress to come.

Never have there been so many opportunities for wholly new developments in telephone service and so much well-rounded research to put behind them. All that has been done is just the beginning.

Captain Wunderlich, who has served on active duty for the past 10 years, held previous assignments as Dental Program Officer of the Eighth and Ninth Naval Districts.

Six Doctors Switch To Regular Navy MC

Regular commissions have been issued to six Reserve Medical Corps officers.

Making the shift were: Lieutenant Commander D. H. McLean; and Lieutenants F. S. Caldwell, J. V. LeBlanc, III, N. T. Debevoise, Robert C. Garcia and Eustine P. Ruccl.

CAPT. MERRILL M. McCUE, USMC, (left) receives the Navy Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant from Commandant of the Marine Corps, General Randolph McC. Pate. Captain McCue was, according to his citation, directly responsible, during the recent Anglo-French-Egyptian hostilities, in establishing and operating the Evacuation Embarkation center at Alexandria, Egypt last November. Captain McCue is now assigned to the Fiscal Branch, Hq., Marine Corps.

Thousands Lose PUC Under New Regulation

The Navy has issued an order which takes away the Presidential Unit Citation from thousands of sailors and marines.

The action implements President Eisenhower's Executive Order 10694 which set up new eligibility rules for wearing the citation.

Under the revised rules, only officers and men who actually participated in an action for which an outfit or ship was cited may continue to wear the award.

The move brings the Navy and Marine Corps into line with the Air Force and the Army.

In the past, the Navy and Marine Corps made a practice of issuing the PUC to all officers and men assigned to a cited unit or ship. Officers and men who actually took part in the action for which their organization was decorated wore the PUC with a star to show that they were participants. Newcomers were given plain PUC's.

The ribbon bar will now be worn only by those who took part in an outstanding action. The star is eliminated except for officers and men who participated on one or more actions which won the recognition of the President.

Those who were not present during the cited action will be required to remove the PUC from their uniforms.

Sailors and Marines who earned the PUC will be permitted to wear it after they leave the cited outfit.

Promotion Confusion For Marine LDO's Prompts Explanation From Headquarters

CONFUSION concerning the lineal positions and promotion chances of Limited Duty Officers has prompted Marine Corps Headquarters to issue an explanatory bulletin.

Headquarters found that a "widespread misunderstanding" arose following publication of the 1 Jan. 1957 Combined Lineal List of Officers on Active Duty. For the first time, the publication set aside a separate section (pages 199 through 202) listing LDO's by seniority.

Questions arose about the lineal precedence of LDO's in relationship to other officers on the active list and their position in promotion zones.

In MCB 1420, Headquarters answers the following questions:

Why is there a separate listing of LDO's in the Lineal List in which their precedence among themselves is not the same, in many cases, as that shown in the regular listing?

Many active duty officers received initial appointments as LDO's after a period of service as temporary officers with permanent warrant or enlisted status. In some cases, these officers' permanent seniority as LDO's was lower than that which they attained as temporary officers at the time they were given LDO appointments. Officers in this category were permitted to retain, on a temporary basis, the lineal position they held as temporary officers. Their temporary seniority relative to all officers is shown in the regular listing. On the other hand, LDO's who do not hold a temporary higher precedence, are shown in pages 1 through 185 in their permanent lineal position. The list of LDO's on pages 199 through 202 shows the permanent precedence among themselves.

How are promotion zones for LDO's established?

Each year, based on recommendations by the Commandant, the Secretary of the Navy determines the number of LDO's required to meet service needs in ranks below lieutenant colonel. The computation is made on a five year basis. The zone is made up of the most senior officers who have not been previously passed over.

Why are LDO's not placed in a promotion zone in their apparent order of lineal precedence?

LDO's are placed in promotion zones in accordance with their permanent seniority (pages 199-202). Temporary precedence, as shown in pages 1 through 185, often reflects only a temporary seniority in present grade and does not determine promotion zone status for selection to higher rank.

Why are LDO's not placed in a promotion zone with their contemporaries who are not restricted in performance of duty?

The lineal position of an LDO in relationship to unrestricted and supply duty officers in a promotion zone does not indicate the status of the LDO with respect to the promotion zone for officers in his category. His status with respect to any promotion zone is reflected only by his lineal position (shown in pages 199-202), relative to the lineal position of the senior and junior officers in the promotion zone established for officers of his rank. In relationship to the unrestricted zone, any LDO may appear above the zone, in the zone, or below the zone. The unrestricted zone has no bearing on an LDO being passed over.

Curtiss-Wright TURBOELECTRICS

Converting the power of the new gas turbine or "turboprop" aircraft engines into useful thrust is a most exacting assignment for the time-honored propeller. It has to handle just about double any previous power . . . smooth out fast accelerations characteristic of these engines . . . control their power by the subtlest amount of pitch change on the blades . . . reverse to slow down and stop the momentum of some hundred tons of airplane.

With electromechanical brains for precise control . . . and with tough, one-piece extruded steel blades to handle unprecedented horsepower . . . Turbopropellers convert the basic operating efficiency of the turboprop into flying efficiency.

A leader in powerplant design, Curtiss-Wright also leads today in translation of turbine power into useful propeller thrust.

What's Holding Up DoD? The Stennis Subcommittee, appointed by Chairman Russell of the Senate Armed Services Committee to look into the Cordiner Report on Service Career incentive pay, says that it cannot set a date to start hearings until it receives an official report on the proposal from the Department of Defense.

A formal request for such a report was sent to the Department by the Committee on 9 May—two months ago.

In light of the attitude of the President and his Bureau of the Budget, the Department cannot make a formal request for the enactment of the legislation. However, it has been stated publicly that the Cordiner report has been endorsed unanimously by Secretary of Defense Wilson and all of the civilian and military heads of the three service departments. There should be nothing, therefore, to restrain the Department from advising the Committee that it favors the principles laid down in the Cordiner report but that the Bureau of the Budget advises it that it is not in accord with the President's fiscal program at this time. Reports in a similar vein have been made hundreds of times in the past.

Once hearings are underway, then the entire problem could be brought out in the open and those phases of the report with which various groups might be in disagreement could be discussed openly and an equitable solution worked out. For example, the Airborne Association, representing a large and growing segment of the Army, is urging the adoption of a step-in-grade hazard-incentive pay scale for parachutists in place of the fixed-rate pay system now in force and which the Cordiner Report would perpetuate. The Association suggests that instead of the present flat $55 a month for enlisted men and $110 for officers, the parachutists be given a sliding scale ranging from $50 a month for recruits to $105 a month for master sergeants, and, for officers, from $100 a month for second lieutenants to $245 a month for colonels. Other groups, too, would like to be heard.

Meanwhile, public endorsement for career incentive pay, increases. Senator Ralph W. Yarborough of Texas introduced into the Record this week a resolution adopted by the Abilene Chamber of Commerce expressing "enthusiastic support" for the Cordiner program which "will, in our judgment, make it possible to attract, retain, and motivate the scientific, professional, technical, combat leadership, and management skills required by our Department of Defense today and in the future."

Red Army Chief Advanced. The recent upheaval among the ruling heads of Soviet Russia brings to the fore the chief of the Red Army, Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov. In fact, students of the Russian situation believe that Zhukov will play an increasingly important role and that he may well become the No. 2 man in the Soviet Union.

Reports are that it was Zhukov who convinced Khrushchev of the overriding implications and awful consequences of nuclear war. Nevertheless, it is evident that in his position as Chief of the Red Army, the Marshal has built a mighty force. The U. S. Army's recent report, "A Look at Soviet Weapons," states that "the Soviet Army is the only major force in the world today that has a completely new post-war arsenal of weapons in being, capable of fighting either a nuclear or non-nuclear war, big or small, in any kind of climate or terrain."

Certainly in his advanced position Zhukov will not permit the Soviet Army to retrogress. And in his position he does not have to rely upon an independent legislative body to carry out his plans.

SATURDAY, 13 JULY 1957

Press Not Disloyal. The responsible heads of the three military departments' public information agencies have told Congress that they know of no instances where newspaper reporters have "purloined" secret documents for publication nor have they witnessed any of the so-called "dark chapters of betrayal" on the part of the press. In fact, the testimony given by Maj. Gen. Guy S. Meloy of the Army, RAdm. E. B. Taylor of the Navy, and Brig. Gen. Arno H. Luehman of the Air Force reflect considerable credit upon the representatives of the press with whom they have had to deal.

One wonders, then, where is the basis for the charges and drastic recommendations presented to Congress by the Commission on Government Security and its chief, Mr. Lloyd Wright. The few instances of questionable conduct which have occurred in the past have been so deplored and frowned upon by other newsmen that the resulting "loss of face" has served as a strong deterrent against repetitions. Nothing has occurred which would justify the stringent measures proposed by the Commission.

Most of those in the Services who are associated with public relations duties or have the responsibility for information programs are frank in stating that newsmen not only help them in getting out what can be released, but that they also advise and assist them in guarding data which must be withheld for security reasons.

The over-reaching recommendations of the Security Commission will find little favor—nor do they deserve to.

QUOTES FROM THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago (12 July 1947)—The dual revelation this week that U. S. Navy submarines accounted for 54 per cent of the Japanese tonnage sunk by the United States forces during World War II, while in the same period 28 of our under-sea craft were attacked by our own airplanes, called vividly to the American consciousness the great debt we owe to the little publicized submarine service. Under strict war-time censorship, the public learned little of the enormous inroads made into Japanese sea power by our undersea fleet nor of the great hazards under which they operated from both foe and friend.

50 Years Ago (13 July 1907)—Our amiable and cool-headed Secretary of War stubbornly refuses to get excited over the talk about war with Japan. When it comes to eight-oared boat races, however, he becomes thoroughly aroused and intimates that if West Point cadets want permission to organize a crew to try conclusions with the Naval Academy youths they would not meet with opposition in getting it from the head of the War Department.

90 Years Ago (13 July 1867)—We are sorry to see that the problem of reconstruction, which has been so much cleared up since the military authorities took charge of the South, now bids fair to be involved and complicated afresh by questionable political elements, and particularly by efforts at confiscation.

Curtailed Dental Service

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

One very good reason so many of our officers are resigning is the uncertainty of "changes in policy." The most recent change is denying dental care to dependents in U.S.A.

Many of the dental officers say they regret not being allowed to help dependents in their free time. They are receiving extra money because of their profession, and denying help to dependents casts an unfavorable reflection on the dental service, as officers in other branches are working just as hard for less pay. Am sure in most cases the dental officers are not that busy and would be glad to be accommodating once more.

The hardships imposed on Service families are numerous. Civilian dentists aren't eager to take on transient patients, usually for emergency work, while waiting to have the rest done overseas.

Prices have gone up everywhere, so it's natural for civilian dentists to set their prices by civilian standards, which, alas, are higher than Service can stretch. Most officers considered the free medical and dental work for their families to help compensate for a smaller salary, when they chose the service as a career. Retired families are having a struggle to cope with rising prices of every necessity of life, and as they seem to have been forgotten with pay raises, they have nothing left over for dental bills.

Is it any wonder our officers should be discouraged over these conditions, and feel a contract should be reliable, and wonder with all the policy changes, "What next?" Can't enough pressure be brought to return dependents the dental care they once had?

If those that feel as I do will write their representatives in Congress, without delay, and interest officers who are in a position to help, I'm sure the unfortunate situation can be changed.

"United we stand, divided we fall" and we can't afford to fall much further.

A RETIRED DEPENDENT

Empty Pockets—

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

This fall we go into our new green uniforms. And it's a pretty good-looking outfit. It costs a pretty good penny, too.

Just before the new outfit was adopted, I shot a wad on two olive drabs. I wonder if the Army quartermaster would like to make a deal. And I wonder how long the greens will be fashionable.

As far as I'm concerned the Army can put out uniforms without pockets. I haven't got anything to put in them.

FIRST LIEUTENANT

Dual Compensation—

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

In reading your JOURNAL last week, I was particularly struck by the comments of Representative Vinson regarding the Rueger case.

He expressed the opinion that it was unfair to drop the unfortunate commander from the retired pay roll because he had been convicted of a criminal offense.

While I share these sentiments on the same grounds—that retired pay is earned pay and should remain inviolable—it seems incongruous to me that the same reasoning cannot be applied to officers who have never run afoul of the law.

I refer specifically to legislation which limits dual compensation. The vast majority of retired officers have served their country honorably—so did Rueger—but yet are deprived of retired pay if they accept full time positions with the Government which pay more than menial salaries.

I suggest that Rep. Vinson's committee take a further look into the dual compensation law. The Government repeatedly asserts that it needs qualified men to fill top-level positions. I can assure the Government that it will not get them by penalizing officers of their hard earned retired pay.

U. S. Listings Top All In World Air Directory

Aviation listings for the U. S. far exceed those of any other nation in the newly-published 1957 Edition of "Interavia ABC, Directory of World Aviation."

Listings for the U. S. are almost double those of England, which takes second place, and more than 57 times those for the U.S.S.R.

Prefacing the half-page listing given to Red China, the Directory explains: "Despite enquiries through official channels, virtually no official information has been obtainable on the organization of aeronautics in China." One and one-half pages is devoted to Formosa.

Printed in five languages including English, the 1,300 page directory is divided into four major parts: a cross-referenced, alphabetical list of civil and military aviation authorities, airlines, aircraft companies, equipment manufacturers, aero-clubs and other types of aeronautical activity; an "Analyt" providing details of all activities in the first section, including addresses, telephone numbers, executive personnel, products manufactured, air fleets of airlines; a five-language glossary of about 1,000 aeronautical terms in each language, many of which are cross-referenced to the first two sections; and an alphabetical list of senior aviation executives and officers, cross-referenced to the first two sections.

Bound in cloth, with board section-separators, the directory sells for $12.00. It is available from Interavia U.S.A., 185 Madison Ave., New York.

RAdm. Cromelin Plays Host To Eisenhowers

President and Mrs. Eisenhower will vacation at Coaster's Island, the site of the Newport, R. I., Naval Base and the Naval War College.

An exact date for the Summer vacation has not yet been announced. While there, they will live in the home of the Base Commandant, RAdm. Henry Cromelin.

The President will have ample opportunity to engage in his favorite sports. There are three golf courses in the area which can be reached within a half an hour. In addition, the President will be able to indulge in another of his favorite pastimes; the area abounds in opportunities for the fresh-water or salt-water angler.

Other officers assigned to the area include: Capt. James B. Weyler, Chief of Staff and Aide to Admiral Cromelin; Capt. John F. Morse, Base Plans and Logistics Officer; LCdr. W. E. Reed, Personnel Officer; and, Capt. J. D. Zieccoli, Senior Medical Officer.

Budget Cuts Peril 20-Year Retirement Of Many Active Duty Reserve Officers

Active duty Reserve officers face a precarious position as a result of the possible manpower reductions which the Armed Forces have said will be necessary if the military budget is heavily cut.

The situation is particularly acute in the cases of Reservists who are approaching the time when they become eligible for retirement benefits.

Only the Navy and the Marine Corps provide limited assurance—in the form of active duty contracts—to some of their Reservists that they will be retained.

THE ARMY AND THE AIR FORCE do not enter into contractual agreements with their Reserve officers.

Although the Senate has restored some of the personnel money which was erased by the House, the Defense Appropriations bill is now in conference and the outcome is uncertain.

While all Services make an attempt to retain long-term Reservists to permit them to qualify for retirement pay, the possibility remains that many may be forced out if the economy axe falls.

THE NAVY AND MARINE CORPS

enter into formal contracts with their Reservists for periods ranging from one to five years. In the Navy, the plan is known as the Active Duty Agreement program. At present, the Navy retains its officers on an indefinite status after they complete an ADA. If an officer desires to be released from active duty after completion of his contract, he must make a formal request for release.

It is Navy policy not to issue ADA's for more than five years of continuous duty. In no cases are contracts issued beyond the point which qualifies an officer for readjustment pay under terms of the Armed Forces Reserve Act of 1952—one-half month's pay for each year of service after five years of continuous active duty.

In the Marine Corps, the counterpart of the Navy ADA is SWAG (Special Written Agreement). In addition, the Marine Corps enters into informal agreements with Reservists for short term extensions. These extensions are called EAD (Extended Active Duty).

An officer who enters into a SWAG contract has an advantage over officers who accept EAD contracts. The SWAG officer has the option of electing two forms of payment in the event the Government terminates its contract. A SWAG officer is guaranteed severance pay for the unexpired portion of his contract—at the rate of one month's pay for each unexpired year—if he is involuntarily released. If he completes a five year contract, he falls under provisions of the Armed Forces Reserve Act. Under the law, a Reservist is entitled to one half month's pay for each year of service up to a total of 18 years, or, a total of nine months pay.

IF AN OFFICER DETERMINES that he would gain more by the terms of the SWAG than the provisions of the Armed Forces Reserve Act, he may elect the most beneficial plan. Reservists who breach SWAG contracts lose their right to severance pay.

On the other hand, officers on EAD have no guarantee of severance pay. If they do not reach the five years of continuous service required by the AFRA, they go out without payment, except for mustering out pay which is paid at the rate of $200 for Stateside service and $300 for overseas service.

All active duty Army and Air Force are serving in indefinite status with the exception of a few Category III Army Reservists. All Army Category III's, however, will be on indefinite status by the end of December.

THE UPSHOT OF THE SITUATION

is that officers who enter into contracts for specified periods have a distinct advantage over officers whose tenure is uncertain. If budgetary considerations force substantial reductions in end-strength, the indefinite category officer would have little assurance that he would be able to attain enough service to qualify for retirement.

While this situation would be true for some short-term contract officers, the majority of long-term contract Reservists would have the assurance that they had enough time remaining on their agreements to reach 18 years of service. The AFRA provides that when an officer reaches 18 years' service, he must be retained until he puts in enough time to qualify for 20 year retirement.

From first page—

the cost of living, we know of no obligation, either express or implied, on the part of the Government to increase the retired pay of members previously retired merely because active duty pay is adjusted on a selective basis as distinguished from general increases on account of increases in the cost of living."

The basic purpose of the Symington bill, he notes, "is to attract and retain qualified young technicians in the active service on a career basis."

"It is not apparent" he contends, "how that purpose would be served by making the active duty pay increases applicable to members presently retired, since no direct benefit would flow to the Government and the highest increases would be in the pay of officers in grades above Grade O-4."

Mr. Campbell recommends that the legislation "be amended to provide that the rates of pay therein provided shall not be applicable in the computation of the retired pay of any person retired before its effective date."

He called the committee's attention to the fact that the fiscal 1958 appropriation for military retired pay, as passed by the House, is 555,000,000, an increase of $150 million over fiscal 1955.

Maj. Gen. Shapley Heads Marine Corps Reserve

Maj. Gen. Alan Shapley, USMC, Commanding General, 3d Marine Division in the Far East, will succeed Brig. Gen. William W. Stickney, USMCR, Director, Marine Corps Reserve.

He will be replaced by Maj. Gen. Francis M. McAlister, USMC, G-4, Marine Corps Headquarters.

General Stickney becomes Deputy Director of the Marine Reserve, the post he held until succeeding Maj. Gen. Thomas G. Ennis, USMC, Commanding General, 3d 4Marine Air Wing, El Toro, Calif., 1 March.

F8U Crusader To Fly From Coast To Coast

Maj. J. H. Glenn, USMC, F8U Project Officer in the Bureau of Aeronautics, will fly an F8U Crusader coast-to-coast from Los Angeles to New York during the week of 15 July.

The flight, known as Operation "Bullet", is designed to test the sustained capability of the F8U at near maximum power over a long distance.

The operation will be conducted under the supervision of RAdm. Thurston B. Clark, Commander of the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent River, Md.

THE CIVIL RIGHTS DEBATE in the Senate threatens to dash all hopes of initiating action on the Cordiner Report this year. The special subcommittee named to conduct the hearings is headed by Senator Stennis (D-Miss.), who is a leader of the Southern bloc.

SOME MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE, such as Representatives Van Zandt (R-Pa.) and Wilson (R-Calif.) of the Armed Services Committee may ask that the House initiate pay hearings. But chances are slim that Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) will want to do anything on the pay situation this session.

THE ADMINISTRATION'S REJECTION of the Cordiner proposals will be a major topic of discussion at the Air Force Association's "Golden Anniversary of Airpower" convention starting 30 July in Washington, D.C. The AFA has been one of the strongest advocates of a new pay structure.

THE SERVICES WILL BE WATCHING the first speeches to be made by General Curtis E. LeMay, former SAC CinC, in his new post as Air Force Vice CofS. Of all military leaders, General LeMay has been the most forceful in the fight for a modernized pay plan. Those who know him say that the General will not curtail his comments on the urgent need for action to check the loss of skilled manpower.

GENERAL LEMAY'S SUCCESSOR at SAC, General Thomas E. Power is expected to carry on the fight to convince superiors that pay changes are essential.

SECDEF WILSON REPORTEDLY remains unconvinced that the Army and Air Force still need veterinarians, but he also remains unsuccessful in abolishing the Veterinary Corps. That Service veterinarians perform assignments far beyond the care of military animals is indicated in the fact that SAC sent two officers and 10 enlisted technicians to make radiation checks on domesticated and wild animals in a 400-mile radius of the current atomic bomb tests in Nevada. ARDC also sent a veterinary team to Nevada.

VETERINARY LEADERS in and out of uniform will stress the research achievements of Service veterinarians in the nation's nuclear program should efforts be renewed to eliminate them as a separate branch.

PIONEERING ARMY WORK, with wide cooperation from numerous Government agencies and industry, in the preservation of foods by atomic radiation, will command increased public attention as work progresses on an Ionizing Radiation Center at Sharpe General Depot, Calif. It will be the first installation anywhere in the world designed especially for food radiation. Expected to be in operation by 1960, the Center will include an atomic reactor and a high energy particle accelerator.

THE PLAN IS for Army Quartermaster Corps to arrange that industry take a leading role in operation of the Food Radiation facility. Best guess is that a joint organization will be created, representing many facets of the food industry. That would insure wide diffusion of information, also would deny any single firm a competitive advantage in what is certain to be a field that will have a major impact on food processing in the next decade.

AN ARMY MISSILE EXPERT, Maj. Robert B. Hamilton, who was project officer for the Missile Master System, which coordinates antiaircraft fire including the Nike, has been ordered to the MAAG on Formosa.

AIR FORCE SPOKESMEN who predicted in 1954 that the new USAF Academy would cost at least $145 million are being vindicated. The Congress, in approving plans for the Academy, placed a $126 million ceiling on the construction cost. The late AF Secretary Harold E. Talbott and other Air Force leaders testified in 1954 that the school would cost more. This week, the House Armed Services Committee raised the ceiling to $147.3 million. It may go still higher.

THE NAVY IS STRIVING for more completely trained technicians. Training courses are being re-oriented so as to produce technicians who can both maintain and operate some of the fancy new equipment. Basic reason for the change is that the limited space on ships and the conditions which prevail in combat make it impractical to use two men where one can do the job.

THE DECISION TO STRENGTHEN our forces in Korea with latest weapons adds interest to the report from the Air Training Command that during the past two years more than 4,000 ROK airmen have received training in the United States. The Army has trained other hundreds of ROK military men.

THE ARMY CHEMICAL CORPS, which entered its 40th year 28 June, reports that a one-shot portable flamethrower is in final stage of production; it's about one-third the weight of the standard multiple-shot weapon.

MAJ. RUSSEL S. NORRIS, JR., is sailing his 31-foot cabin cruiser from Baltimore, Md., where he was Assistant Dental Surgeon at Ft. Holabird, to his new post at Ft. Clayton, C.Z., 3,000 miles away. He's accompanied by Lt. Col. George E. Cilley, USA, who is on leave. The major, who holds a license for any vessel up to 65 feet, is also an airplane pilot.

CLOSE ATTENTION WILL BE PAID to the September draft call. The Army was authorized 13,000 inductees in July. This drops to 11,000 for August. The reduction is expected to continue, may level off at 6,000 to 8,000.

A SPECIAL STUDY GROUP of the National Academy of Sciences — National Research Council has convened for the summer at Woods Hole, Mass., to assist the Air Force in preparation of a long-range plan for research and development. ARDC representative is Col. A. P. Gagge, USAF, Deputy Commander for Sciences of the Air Force Office of Scientific Research.

A TRI-SERVICE AF HERO IN KOREA, Capt. Harold E. Fischer, who accounted for 10 MiG's destroyed and three damaged before being taken prisoner, will become Assistant PAS&T at Iowa State College of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts at Ames in August. Born in Lone Rock, Iowa, 8 May 1925, he joined the Navy as an Aviation Cadet in 1943, served until 1945. He then went to Iowa State College, enlisted in the Army in 1948 and was commissioned in 1949, but transferred that same year to the Air Force. He served two combat tours in Korea, scored 105 missions in F-80's and almost 50 in F-86's.

SOME AIR FORCE bases are supporting successful Riding Clubs. Others are expanding Aero Clubs. Langley AFB, Va., which is headquarters for TAC, has a unique USAF unit; it's a Yacht Club, which will hold a third annual Regatta 13-14 July.

New Fuel Can Carry B-58 Around World

The Olin Mathieson Chemical Company has developed a jet fuel, known as HEF-2, which it reports will increase engine efficiency up to 50 per cent and will enable the giant Convair B-58 bomber to fly around the world without refueling.

The new fuel, made from a borax base, gives United States air power an "amazing deterrent" to aggression, according to Brig. Gen. Clyde H. Mitchell, USAF, deputy director of production, Air Materiel Command.

HEF-2 will be manufactured in a $36 million plant being constructed with Air Force funds at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Col. McShane Graduates

Col. James E. McShane, USA, Transportation Training Command, was graduated from the Army Logistics Management School at Ft. Lee, Va., senior Army school in the logistics field, 28 June and has returned to his previous assignment at Ft. Eustis.

IMPARTIAL IN FLIGHT

Lt. Gen. C. S. Irvine, USAF, believes in 100 per cent impartiality in visiting aircraft plants. He makes it a practice of flying in with another company's plane.

The Air Force's Deputy Chief of Staff (Materiel) flew to Ft. Worth, Tex., to speak at the unveiling of the Convair B-58 in a McDonnell F-101.

General Irvine told newsmen he planned to use a Convair F-102 to visit the North American plant on the West Coast and would fly to the Lockheed plant at Palmdale, Calif., where the F-104 is built in an F-100, a North American plane.

Army Orders More Bell H-40 Turbine Copters

Bell Helicopter Corporation has announced receipt of a new multi-million dollar Army order for the H-40 Iroquois six-place turbine-engine helicopter.

Designed for front line service, the H-40 can carry troops, litters or cargo at top speeds of 150 mph, and match the climbing performance of many a WWII fighter.

Production of the H-40 is reportedly running approximately 11 months ahead of contract schedule. Calling for three experimental prototype models, the earlier Army contract is near fulfillment as Phase II tests begin at Edwards AFB, Calif. Phase I tests are reported to indicate that the XH-40 will exceed expectations.

Bell Helicopter is currently making deliveries on the Army H-13H which last year set a world's endurance record by flying 57 hours and 50 minutes without landing.

There's nothing else like it

There is no other publication like ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL. All others serving the military are either newspapers, or non-ABC-audited monthlies. ("ABC" stands for Audit Bureau of Circulations, nationally known newspaper, magazine and trade paper circulation auditing authority serving the nation's leading advertisers.)

OLIN MATHIESON CHEMICAL CORPORATION has begun a four-year expansion program for development and production of high-energy solid propellants for rocket engines. New research and development laboratories, pilot plants, and test and production facilities will be constructed at the company's Ordill Works near Marion, Illinois.

REACTION MOTORS, INC., Denville, N. J., has appointed Joseph W. Antonides Vice President for Solid Propellant Operations. Mr. Antonides will be responsible for work done under the company's prime contract with the Air Force for the development and production of solid propellant rocket engines and other contracts for similar work.

CONVAIR DIVISION OF GENERAL DYNAMICS CORP. and the Air Force have confirmed that new and different types of electronic controls will supply continuous information for automatically guiding a plane to and from its target and releasing pods. The virtually automatic control systems will direct the flight path of the nation's first super-sonic bomber, the B-58 Hustler.

NORTHROP AIRCRAFT, INC. has received a $73,000,000 production order from the AF for delivery of Snark SM-62 Intercontinental guided missiles to operational units of SAC. This is the first official disclosure that Snark long-range missiles are to be assigned to operational units.

THE LEAR, INC. plant at Grand Rapids, Mich., will assemble delicate component parts of the electronic "brain"

General Cook of AIA Stresses Aircraft Firms In Work On Missiles, Hits Arsenal

GOVERNMENT owned and operated arsenals are obsolete, according to General Orval R. Cook, USAF-Ret., Aircraft Industries Association President.

Speaking at a specially-called press conference in Washington, D. C., General Cook last week emphasized that industry should take full responsibility for the development of guided missiles. In all fields, including that of guided missiles, General Cook asserted, the government owned and operated arsenal has about outlived its usefulness.

He specifically excluded from the obsolete category those government arsenals which are operated by industry.

The role of private research organizations and universities should stop, said General Cook, at the point where they would construct a "flying article, a prototype." Universities can render excellent services in basic research in the missile field, he said, "but the Aircraft Industry Association has long taken the view that they should not engage in development work in missiles."

Industry, according to the general, is most experienced in aircraft and thus "it is naturally the most efficient. . . . The aircraft industry has assembled strong teams of scientists, engineers and technicians whose talents are being applied to missiles, as well as to manned aircraft. We see no reason why their functions should be duplicated in either Government establishments or the universities."

"The development of the missile has paralleled aircraft development," said the general. "Research and design problems are the same. The techniques and know-how of aircraft production, acquired over the years by the aircraft industry, have applied precisely to the guided missiles. So have materials research and discovery, electronics and systems and components jointly employed in both types of aircraft. Thus, it is quite natural that the industry which brought the airplane to its present advanced estate develops and produces missiles more efficiently and at lower cost than can Government arsenals."

"The government has never been a successful producer of aircraft, and there is no reason to believe that it can be a successful producer of missiles."

General Cook added that he did not consider the universities serious competition for industry in the missile field.

In his view, "the principal reason for their existence is to teach and they should not be distracted from that purpose."

"STARFIGHTER" TEST

The first two of eight Lockheed F-104A "Starfighters" have arrived at the Air Force Operational Test Center, Eglin AFB, Fla., to undergo employment and suitability testing.

The "Starfighters" were flown to Eglin by Maj. Edward P. Ballinger, USAF, and Capt. Roscoe B. Smith of the AFOTC's 3243d Test Group (Fighter).

On hand to greet the pilots on their arrival were Brig. Gen. Ernest K. Warburton, USAF, Commander of the AFOTC and Col. Daniel F. Sharp, USAF, Commander of the 3243d Test Group. Also present were Mr. V. C. Givens, Lockheed Test Director, Mr. E. J. Gagnon, Lockheed Test Coordinator, and Mr. Bob Hansen, Lockheed Military Sales Representative. In addition, Lockheed and General Electric Corporation Technical Representatives were present.

The testing of the "Starfighter," which is expected to take five months, is scheduled to begin approximately 15 Aug. The test is to be conducted under task force concept with members of the Tactical and Air Defense Commands participating together with those of the AFOTC. The Tactical and Air Defense Commands plan to utilize the new Ultrasonic speed fighter within their organizations.

New Titeflex Fitting

Titeflex, Inc., of Springfield, Mass., has announced development of a new type of permanent hose fitting for use in military aircraft missiles and rockets.

The fitting is designed to operate successfully under pressure and at wide temperature ranges. Flexible lines equipped with the fitting have consistently exceeded military requirements for medium pressure Teflon hose, the company said.

Builders of Defense For All Services

of the Bomarc IM-99 intercontinental missile under glass in a special room within a room. The special "Bomarc" room is being built because missile component production necessitates closer control of dirt and lint levels than heretofore required in aircraft instrument production.

NORTHROP AIRCRAFT, INC., Hawthorne, Calif., has elected A. C. Rubel to its board of directors. Mr. Rubel is Vice Chairman of the Military Petroleum Advisory Board and President of the Union Oil Co. of California.

Now declassified by the Air Force, the system includes a Flying Pipe unit enabling a jet fighter to transfer fuel to another at altitudes above 30,000 ft. and speeds exceeding 530 mph.

AFC INDUSTRIES, INC., has elected Brig. Gen. Francis H. Boland, Jr., USAF, a member of its board of directors. General Boland is also director of the Joy Mfg. Co. of Pittsburgh.

USAF Regulations

The Air Force has issued a new regulation (AFR 25-3) describing responsibilities for implementation of management engineering activities at Headquarters and Major Commands.

The regulation describes management engineering as "a profession that combines the exactness of science with the art of judgment to develop managerial tools, techniques, procedures, and methods which, when applied by a manager, will help to achieve more effective operations. . . . Management engineering is concerned with the improvement of over-all systems as well as specific work procedures and tools."

WEAPON SYSTEM COSTING is the subject of Headquarters Office Instruction 178-7. This document comments that "each contributor to a costing exercise will insure that his data are transmitted with an appropriate statement of assumptions, qualifications and explanation."

A UNIFORM ACCOUNTING SYSTEM for military welfare funds is the subject of newly published AF Manual 176-1, 25 June 1957, which states that accounting systems must be established on a "true accrual basis." The new policy will result in a "system of accounting for unit funds on a cash receipts and disbursement basis to produce a monthly statement reporting a net worth balanced obligations payable in future periods."

THE MAINTENANCE ENGINEER-

ING PROGRAM is the subject of recently issued AFR 66-13. This regulation concerns both the Air Force and Air National Guard maintenance program.

Logistics Jackpot

Steel girders—wooden beams—cable and wire reels—railroad ties and track—delicate electronic equipment—these are typical C-123 loads on any logistics mission.

Jet engines, food, medicine and hospital supplies by the ton—these make up the bulk of C-123 cargoes.

These versatile transports can move entire divisions—at the rate of up to sixty men or eight tons of cargo per plane. Big loads do not mean hard surfaced runways—the C-123's assault transport characteristics turn narrow clearings and furrowed fields into landing areas.

Reliability—versatility—performance . . . these C-123 qualities are typical of the Fairchild design and production philosophy.
